They also allege their civil rights were violated when officers fired a Tear at them, which the sheriff's office says was not aimed at any person. The alleged incident occurred when deputies with the Ventura County Sheriff's Department went to the home of Richard and Maria Deuch, who told officers a man was breaking into their home. When they arrived at the home, the officers saw another man leaving the house, and told him to stop. The man ran away. An officer attempted to chase the man using a drone, but the image from the drone is unclear. At some point during the chase, the Deuchs say, the officer fired a Tear at the man. Since 2008, drones have been used by police in Santa Barbara and San Diego counties. The unmanned aerial vehicles have long been used in military operations, around the world and have been equipped with cameras, thermal imaging equipment, forward-looking infrared, laser and noise detection devices. "We are now at the crossroads of technology and the Fourth Amendment and to say, 'by all means, bring the good guys the technology,' it's not that simple," said UC San Diego law professor James Whelan. "If we don't ask and answer some really fundamental questions, then we are going to move to a place that I think is more dangerous than where we are."

Hypothalamic paraventricular nucleus: new insights from OX39 immunolabeling. Hypothalamic paraventricular nucleus (PVN) contains two major components: magnocellular (M) and parvocellular (P) types of neurons. Although each class has a specific distribution, the properties of the two populations and their possible interactions are little known. To characterize the two types of neurons of the hypothalamic PVN, we used the neuropeptide OX39, a marker expressed exclusively by magnocellular neurons, during early prenatal development. From 12 weeks of gestation to birth, OX39 immunoreactivity was mainly confined to an anlage of the parvocellular group as we reported recently. Moreover, OX39-immunoreactive cells began to appear from 17 weeks of gestation in the magnocellular group. These results suggest a relationship between the two populations. Many compounds which have a non-linear optical (NLO) effect can be used as laser waveguides or phase shifters 3da54e8ca3
