Trademark usage AutoCAD Product Key is used for a number of different purposes. AutoCAD Crack Keygen: AutoCAD is a registered trademark of Autodesk, Inc. (a registered trademark of Autodesk Inc.).. On the other hand, the terms are often used interchangeably, especially by users who may not realize that Autocad is the registered trademark of Autodesk. In AutoCAD's 60 year history, some people argue that it would have been better to use the term AutoCADx than AutoCAD as it connotes a higher functionality than AutoCAD. In 2011, a complaint was filed with the United States Trademark Office concerning the trademarked term AutoCAD. The Office then changed the proposed initial decision to order cancellation of Autocad because Autocad was a generic term and not a valid trademark. The complainant had filed for the trademark AutoCAD in 1988 and then renewed the registration in 1994. The renewal was for the term AutoCAD Computer-aided Design. The argument of the complainant was that since there was no computer aspect to the term, Autocad was a generic term. In November 2012 the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board (TTAB) rendered a decision in favor of the complainant, which required that the registration for AutoCAD be canceled.
