A federal judge has dismissed a lawsuit brought by Macomb County voters who sought to overturn a Nov. 8 election in which the county Board of Commissioners lost a tight race to pick the next county mayor. Macomb County residents Aleksey Malashko and Carol Flood filed a lawsuit Dec. 19 against

County Clerk Cathy Doherty, who oversees elections. In the Nov. 8 election, Macomb voters decisively defeated the Board of Commissioners' effort to remove Commissioner Eric Lincoln from office, beating the incumbent by more than 2,500 votes. Lincoln himself is the winner of the race, but a string of complaints about voter fraud prompted an investigation by State Board of Elections officials. Macomb County prosecutor Michael DeWine's office will prosecute any charges related to election fraud. But the case filed by Malashko and Flood contends the ballot board's probe was politically motivated and excluded certain allegations of voting fraud.
