What happens if you lose? You can choose a fresh start. Or you can choose to give up and return a backup. Let’s dive into the cards and pull out the best-bet, worst-bet, and even the sometimes controversial picks of all the Fate Accelerated decks. Game 1, Pick 1 The best-bet of the day is one of two quadrant decks. Depending on what you’re hoping to accomplish, you might be quite happy with either of these options. The Opportune Prodigy is a seven copy, dual action sliver of revenge that, when transformed, can amass quite a lot of political might in a single session. The choice of first target puts the Prodigy in position to not just seize power, but to build your own Empire from the ground up. All the while you’ll be spreading quite a bit of money around to the myriad of Pops and Slivers you may be placing on the board. The Sidekick is your typical eight copy, basic action corruption sliver. The trouble is that you’re going to lose a good deal of the game riding the momentum of assassinating your first target. You’ll be needing a lot of slots, and you’ll be spending three fate to put the sleaze on. But the rewards are greater than the price. Game 2, Pick 2 The worst-bet is an early reprint from Conspiracy: Future Past. The Change Engine is the fastest and easiest way to kill your own game, so that’s something to consider before you pick it. The newest version of Change Engine, the Lotus Dynasty, is the best way to speed the process along. On average, you’re reducing the number of actions required to finish your game from 12 to
