Here, substantial evidence supports the jury's finding that French committed aggravated sexual assault. French contends that the evidence was insufficient because the victim did not state clearly that she did not consent to sexual intercourse. However, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has clarified that even though the complainant's affirmative response to the question of whether the defendant caused penetration does not have to be "unequivocal," "an affirmative response to the question of whether the sexual organ of the defendant or the hand of the defendant penetrated the female sexual organ of the complainant need not be a phrase of any particular length or wording."
