Hairy cell leukemia is a rare lymphoproliferative disorder with an indolent clinical course. This disease is characterized by abnormal proliferation of mature B cells. The B cell is the principal cell type affected and has a bimodal distribution of circulating peripheral blood B lymphocytes. Treatment of hairy cell leukemia (HCL) is based on the purging of the abnormal B cells from the circulation with either pentostatin or 2-chlorodeoxyadenosine (2-CdA), alone or in combination. The combination of these purging agents has been shown to induce complete remission in 90% of patients with HCL. Progression-free survival at 4 years has been reported to be approximately 70% in patients with advanced disease treated with the combination of 2-CdA, 6-mercaptopurine, and prednisone. This paper will discuss the pathogenesis, clinical features, diagnostic approach, and treatment of HCL.Hayden Panettiere is to marry producer-director Dan Weber of "Smashed" and the "Dancing With the Stars" in November.
