sometimes the player's vehicles will be seen running slightly over the road and spraying "vinegared" water and "vinegared" mud on the pavement, after a very brief delay. this doesn't happen until the player is driving a car that has a max speed of 175 or higher, and most likely only happens when the player is driving a cadillac dts, bmw m5, or similar. it seems to happen regardless of weather or time of day. this is part of the car wallowing mechanic, which is unlocked by getting a new car. the mechanic is not activated when driving a sport or luxury car. it is activated instantly when the player lands on dirt roads and dirt paths (e.g. the desert map map) or on a steep slope. the night time vehicle headlights in the night vision mode illuminate the ground underneath the car instead of above it as in other games. this makes the illuminated area appear to be below the car, giving the appearance of walls being illuminated. this may also happen if the headlights are activated too many times in a row, though this is rarely noticed by players. sometimes when a mission is being played the map where the mission is going to be is reported as "delayed". this is observed when driving with night vision on, driving long distances and when the player is on the coastal san diego map. sometimes if the player is using night vision and is far away from a light source, the player's character will appear to be "teleported" to a different location on the map. the player can still go directly to the light source using the dash ui and can then return to the original position. this glitch is only known to occur on the map of carneo.
