Graphic Designers use various computer applications and new products to create visual materials and artifacts. In digital media applications, a layer is a place in an image that contains information about how the pixels of the image are being displayed. Text can be in a layer of an image (such as a label), or in a separate layer. In these forms masks can be used to restrict the text, allowing it to fill the shape of the letters that are written within the mask. Design is both an art and a science. Indeed, the best designers combine both creativity and hard work in order to succeed in their field. Design is the art or craft of arranging and composing visual elements.
