Hi in my ipad app I need to save and load the context of a uiviewcontroller, not in the appdelegate, I mean if the user, for any reason changes the text that's displayed in a uitextview in the uiviewcontroller for example, how can I save the current context that is displaying the data on the uitextview and load it so that any change of data is kept after the app is killed and reloaded. I tried by saving a NSMutableArray containing the text and if I edit the text in my uiviewcontroller the uitextview is changed but when I kill the app the changes are lost. Thanks for your help :) A: UsingNSUserDefaults is probably best. You will want to save an instance of your view controller in there that can be accessed by your view controller. Save the text in the view controller instance in init or viewDidLoad. NSUserDefaults *defaults = [NSUserDefaults standardUserDefaults]; [defaults setObject:yourTextArray forKey:@"MyTextArray"]; [defaults synchronize]; #include #include #include "xmlrpc_string.h" #include "xmlrpc_json.h" #include "xmlrpc_server.h" void xmlrpc_json_encode(struct xmlrpc_env *env, struct xmlrpc_value *value, const char *encoding) { char str[1024]; int i,j; xmlrpc_json_elem *elem; if(value->type == XMLRPC_TYPE_BOOLEAN) *(int *)value->data = *(int *)value->data; xmlrpc_json_check_value_type(env, value); if(xmlrpc_string_length(env, value->data) > 1024) 04aeff104c
