Net Nanny Is a SIMPLE AND LIGHTWEIGHT application, working with small resource requirements. Net Nanny should work on any computer running Android 2.2+ and have 1 GB RAM or more. Net Nanny is a 2-in-1 application that can be used in two different ways: This is a safe application, giving the user total control over his computer, so that parents can be sure that their kids won't access any inappropriate content. It has an easy to understand interface and does what it is supposed to do. It is also equipped with various tools that let users have access to their privacy, control the games and applications that their kids can run, and filter them based on their ESRB Rating. The app was designed with a wide range of categories, making it possible for parents to place restrictions that are specific to their preferences. Net Nanny comes with different ratings that are used by the kids to access games and other activities. There are different ways to control the use of the program. For instance, there is an option for parents to enable a time schedule for the kids' computer time and limit the time their kids can access the internet. There is also the option to enable privacy, even to control the number of times their kids can access the internet on a daily basis. Website Filter: Net Nanny Website Filter can not only monitor your child's Internet use but it can also prevent your child from accessing certain websites. The program provides you with detailed reports that will keep you informed on your child's Internet activities and even allow you to block certain websites with just one click. Parental Control: Parents can control their child's Internet usage by giving Net Nanny parental control software the proper permissions. With the help of this program you can monitor your child's Internet use, shut down their PC and even block certain websites. It's also possible to log in to the child's PC and perform all the administrative tasks manually. Daily Monitoring: Parents can choose between two monitoring options, the first one is the free version and the second one includes some additional features that can be activated by a payment of 10 dollars a month. In both cases, you can monitor your child's computer use on the following days: Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays. Time Interval Control: Parents can specify the time interval for which their child's computer will be used (hours and days). Internet Explorer Control: Net Nanny IE Control can modify your child's Internet Explorer settings to limit the download speed of the browser and limit the number of tabs that he can have open. This way you can avoid excessive Internet use and internet blockers (e.g. Yontoo). Internet Security: You can protect your child from the risks of the Internet by restricting certain websites. Net Nanny allows you to block websites that contain information about legal and illegal activities, drugs, pornographic content, and even some racist and sexist websites. My question is this: Is it necessary to have the Net Nanny software installed on your computer in order to use the computer? If so, what would be the negative consequences of having it installed? (e.g. what would happen if I decided to remove the software?) I really would not want to have to reinstall the whole thing, as the software seems to be very simple to use, and is not overly complicated like other similar apps.
