This DNA modification is similar to 5-methylcytosine (5-mC) in terms of structure and biological functions. Similar to 5-mC, 5-hmC is often thought to be a stable epigenetic modification that has low potential to induce gene expression. However, recent studies have demonstrated that 5-hmC can be an active mark and is associated with gene expression. Furthermore, 5-hmC is dynamically regulated by lineage-specific TFs and is highly enriched in embryonic stem cell genes. Therefore, 5-hmC serves as an important regulatory mark for gene expression. In this chapter, we will focus on the
