The fact that Apple has designed their own AirPods case makes the AirPods Pro an attractive purchase. Up until now, wireless headphones need to be placed in a certain area of your ears to be effective, but the AirPods Pro sits on your ears, which means they deliver a better sound. Basically, you can listen to your music or podcast in one ear and still hear people talking next to you. This ability to hear twice as much while using your headphones makes the AirPods Pro the smartest choice in the wireless market. The AirPods Pro are truly wireless. This is a product that is definitely on a whole other level. For starters, it looks awesome. It's made of aluminum and sports a metallic finish on the edge. Unlike other wireless headphones, it only weighs 12 grams, which makes it feel light and not bulky at all. It's just a perfect wireless solution for media lovers. On the inside, you have a set of touch controls, which allow you to adjust the volume, skip tracks, pause and play music, talk to Siri and control Apple Music. You can also check your missed calls, the number of new SMS messages and take a photo in your iPhone. If there's a lack of an over-the-ear bud for your iPhone, then you can use the noise-cancelling microphone to talk to Siri. Even though the battery life of the AirPods Pro is pretty disappointing, you can always charge them via Apple's Lightning cable. When you connect them to a Lightning cable, their battery life doubles, which means that you can get through the day with the AirPods Pro for sure. If you do not connect them to your Lightning cable, their battery life drops to 12 hours. The charging time is only 2.5 hours, which is also an absolute must to have. The battery life is a bit disappointing, but what's even worse is that there don't seem to be any ways to boost it.
